

STOP BORDER TROUBLE

Movement of Carranza Troops Through Territory of United States Will Prevent Further Attacks.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Movement of more Carranza troops through American territory renders further attack on border towns improbable, in the opinion of Major General Funston. About one thousand Carranza troops reached Douglas, Ariz., yesterday and 1,200 more are due there today. General Obregon expects to transfer 5,000 men across American territory in his effort to crush the bands into which Villa's forces have disintegrated.

Governor Ferguson of Texas, who recently conferred with General Carranza, was at the war department today and Monday will see President Wilson. He was optimistic over the correction of border troubles.

DOGS SPREAD DISEASE

Canine Pets Often Give People Tape Worms by Licking Their Hands.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The department of agriculture has made public a statement declaring that its experts have discovered that the dog is one of the greatest carriers of disease. The recent "foot and mouth" disease wave over the country was declared to have been spread in a large measure by dogs. It was learned that canines pick up the virus of this disease in the dirt and their fur, carrying it from one farm to another.

AT THE THEATERS

At the Grand.

If we are to believe an eastern contemporary, Geo. M. Cohan's mystery farce, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," which comes to the Grand matinee and night, December 19, is a combination of farce, satire, mystery, thrills, melodrama and a thousand laughs, all made into the best play that has so far come from the prolific Cohan pen. To quote William Hollowell Magee, the hero of it all, "Seven Keys to Baldpate" is a wild shilling tale for the tired business man's tired wife.

At the Iris.

William Farnum, the world's foremost dramatic actor, who deserted the legitimate stage to play exclusively in the feature films, has never had a role that was more to his liking than that of Daniel Edmond in "The Broken Law," by Oscar C. Apfel. Mr. Farnum, who in a $100,000 a year star, deserted the speaking stage because he felt that the films offered him a larger field in which to display his talents. Also he was of the opinion that the photoplay offered greater opportunity for artistic work. In the matter of artistry, Mr. Farnum has risen to unforeseen heights in his delineation of the principal character in "The Broken Law." The role, calling for the utmost in romantic and dramatic acting, was peculiarly adapted to his temperament. As a result, his work was even more effective than what he did in "The Wonderful Adventure," "The Nigger," "The Plunderer," or any of the other Fox photoplay successes.

At the Orpheum.

Murray and his Keystone associates, in the farce feature, "A Game Old Knight" of the Triangle program at the Orpheum tomorrow, have succeeded in extracting every last laugh out of the story of a wandering knight, who seeks to win the young and pretty princess when King Mike XIII and his elder and ugly daughter desire him for her consort. Torture chambers to bring the knight to terms are handled in such a way as to rouse the risibles of any audience. The Originality makes the "big league" act and Leo Aronson & Co. in "A Super at Maxims," offer a juggling act at the Hipp theater during the last half of the week that keeps up with many of the best on the vaudeville stage. The various species of juggling attempted by the troupe do not vary from the ordinary. The troupe serves the guests a la juggling is new to these parts, however, and the act made a favorable impression on the audience last night. Black face comedians of any ability almost always find a warm spot in the hearts of Topeka theatergoers, and Morton Kennedy proves no exception to the general rule. The bill is opened by Gille and Lamonte, in a talking-singing dancing offering. Gille also introduces several gowns that are new to Topeka gown-builders.
